World news:

This mayor in Mexico married a crocodile?

You wouldn't have thought a crocodile would be a dream bride, but that hasn't stopped this man from marrying one. Don't worry though, it's not a real wedding. It's part of a Mexican ceremony which is more than 200 years old. The mayor of the southern Mexican fishing town San Pedro Huamelula 'marries' a crocodile at the end of June as part of the local harvest tradition. The reptile bride, dressed in white with a flower crown on its head is taken around the town to music before the ceremony takes place. The croc is regarded as a princess, and the traditional belief is that it will bring peace and prosperity to their community, particularly a good harvest. It's not exactly a romance made in heaven, let's hope there were no "crocodile tears."

The takeaway pattie and chips that's gone into space!

This takeaway has gone where few takeaways have gone before - into outer space! A Hull chip shop has sent this pattie and chips 37km into the sky, attached to a weather balloon. The savoury pattie, made from fried mashed potato, is a signature food in the region. It was launched from a site in Sheffield, travelling to the edge of the Earth's atmosphere, before floating back down to land in a field in Lincolnshire. Craven Park Primary School in Hull will be looking at the journey the food has been on, studying the experiment as part of a science project. They want to try and learn more about the Earth's upper atmosphere, temperature and pressure. Hopefully, they will learn a lot of this!

Year 6 transfer day!

On Tuesday year 6 went to their new schools. They spent the whole day in their secondary schools, and met their new tutor. Some lessons took place for the children, to help them settle in the new school. Bhavesh quoted, "I really enjoyed the day and loved meeting my new classmates, and my new tutor. I can't wait for secondary school!" Most of year 6 is excited for their new schools, and can't wait to crack on. Thank you to all the staff and teachers for preparing the students for their new schools.

Infants Sports Day

This week, it was the infant's sports day! The event took place on the junior AstroTurf and there were many fun new activities to enjoy! The infant's children were very excited when they went to line up to their stations as there were lots of games. The event was managed very well as there were year five sports leaders helping and guiding the younger children in making sure they were doing the activity the correct way. Bilal, in year one, yew, commented, "It was a really amazing event and I was impressed with how the year five leaders behaved!"

LEGOLAND Windsor unveils Castle Hotel in amazing drone footage ahead of July opening

Legoland Castle Hotel will lower its drawbridge for the first time this weekend (July 1-2). Drone footage released by the Windsor resort gives a first glimpse of the new hotel and shows the resort's model makers putting the finishing touches to its 657 Lego models. Situated right on the edge of the theme park, the Legoland Castle Hotel brings to life an enchanted world of brave knights, magical wizards and mischievous jesters. A giant floor to ceiling Lego wizard towers over 7cm high dragonfly models in the hotel's entrance.

Harry Potter themed seven course dinner coming to London

Have you ever daydreamed about what it would be like to eat the Hogwarts feast? Well, now you can as a Harry Potter themed dinner is coming to London! And while The Library in Covent Garden have decided to give Hagrid's rock cakes a miss, there are seven decadent dishes on the menu. From Devil's Snare to the mysterious Secret Keeper dish, Potterheads will be able to indulge in a variety of magical treats. What's more, diners will have to do their best Gryffindor, Hufflepuff, Ravenclaw or Slytherin outfit before being seated at the table.
