Sausage Dog Takeover

Almost one-thousand tiny sausage dogs and their owners got together in Greenwich Park in London over the weekend. People came to celebrate the dachshund breed of dogs. It was quite cold at the weekend so most of the dogs were wrapped up in coats! This was the third walk to celebrate this breed.

Russian cat predicts world cup winners

In Russia, there is a cat called Achilles, who has been chosen to predict who will win each match in the world cup! Achilles will do this by standing next to the country's flag. They have chosen Achilles as their chief prognosticator, this means to predict something from the future. Let's hope that it predicts correctly.

Science dome

On the 21st and 22nd of March, all of the juniors had a fascinating experience in the science dome, that was held in the hall. The year six's learnt about the amazing life and discoveries of Charles Darwin, as well as the history of the world. Hiba from Opal class, says "I enjoyed learning about the discoveries of Charles Darwin. The experience was awesome!" It was all in 360 degrees.

Sports relief

Today it is Sports Relief Day. Well done to all of you who dressed up as a sporting person. It was great to see everybody dressed up differently and tried to look like someone who takes part in sport. Harris from Ruby class in Year 6 said to us "It is great to dress up in our own clothes and I am really looking forward to all the great activities that are set to take place.

Westfield London now 'biggest in Europe'

Westfield London is now the largest shopping centre in Europe with the opening of a £600 million extension. The 740,000 sq ft expansion of White City, west London, will increase the overall size of the centre to 2.6 million sq ft to overtake Aviapark in Moscow and the Westgate shopping city in Zagreb, Croatia. The new extension is launching six months ahead of schedule and will open in phases. Westfield Square, a new public events space surrounded with shops, dining and leisure outlets, will open in the summer. John Lewis will now have 4 floors and so will H&M. If your parents love shopping, this is the perfect place for them!

Dog's noses help to sniff out cancer

MacBane, a dog at the Penn Vet Working Dog Centre, can identify samples of tissue containing ovarian cancer.

This dog will be now used worldwide to save peoples life- from cancer before it's too late. Cancer is a life threatening disease and can damage your body.

UNICEF: Rights Respecting school

In KS1, they have also now elected all of their UNICEF councilors. They can now help us win the award. Ms. Flora and some other children have been packing all of our donations for the backpack appeal into backpacks that will be taken to poor places in Africa to help children in need. Our school is aiming for the UNICEF award for rights respecting schools, but we need everyone's help to learn all the right respecting articles. That's why we are introducing article of the week.

We have now had our tea parties based on our particular books. Year 5&6 were lucky enough to taste Year 6's delightful muffins that they made during DT week.

CHILDREN'S RIGHTS

Growth-Mindset quote of the week:

"Failure is an opportunity to begin again more intelligently"
